Greg: “Happy Friday once again, it’s time to forget about your day job and start working on your TV show.”

“This week on TRONGuide TV we’re taking an exclusive first look at CCTV’s brand new facility here in Salem, scheduled to open in early 2009.”

The building will be located at 295 Church Street, with CCTV’s entrance on the Trade street side. We’ll have about 8700 square feet on the ground floor, including a spacious lobby, conference room, and a whole lot of windows.

Music punch

The studio is big enough to accommodate a small audience, and the kitchen area (with attached dressing room) makes it easy to keep your guests and crew comfortable.

Perhaps most exciting, especially to me, is the space set aside for a new Training and Youth Media center. This classroom space is adjacent to six editing rooms containing up to nine editing stations.

Producers can expect rapid access to equipment and services. Our capacity to serve you increases dramatically. The new building can accommodate multiple events, such as productions, meetings, and classes, at the same time.

Greg: “It’s very exciting to be able to share this information with you. I’ve been involved with CCTV almost since it’s inception, and as staff I’ve seen a lot of amazing growth in the past 5 years. This is a great time to get involved and start making television.

We’ll be right back.

“As the training coordinator here at CCTV, it’s my job to provide opportunities for producers like you who are learning how to produce, shoot, and edit your own programs. And that is what TRONGuide TV is all about: watching, learning, and creating television.”

If you’re thinking about an idea you’d like to develop into a program, or if you just want to learn more about making TV, visit the website at cctvsalem.org/tronguide. You’ll learn about our classes, equipment, and how to get started.

“There’s a lot more TRONGuide TV coming up in the next few months so keep watching. Our next show will include an all-new Video Training feature about lighting, including certification on this new check-out light kit I’ve been testing.

That’s it for this week. Remember, it’s up to you to make television good. Bye now
